Supporting Deaf kids to navigate a visual world

Are you ready? Lottery 217 has $800,000 waiting to transform your life. Imagine securing your dream home, cruising the coast in a sleek new motorhome, or retiring a decade early. This draw could turn your wishes into reality. Plus, your support helps Deaf, deafblind, and hard of hearing Aussies across Australia thrive and achieve their goals. With this Lottery, we're making magic happen!

One important service made possible by the Deaf Lottery is 'Auslan At Home'. Our Auslan At Home tutors travel far and wide to support families in learning sign language with their children. Whether in the family home, online, or even at a local soccer club, we ensure Deaf and hard of hearing kids have access to Auslan when they need it most.

Communication Pathways, Not Choices: Lucian and Kristina's Story

When we first learned my son Lucian was hard of hearing, doctors recommended immediate hearing aids, focusing entirely on oral communication. People often wonder why we're learning Auslan when my son can already speak. For us, it's about giving Lucian every tool possible to navigate his world. When he experiences hearing fatigue, Auslan gives him a visual way to understand what spoken language might miss.

Our Auslan tutor, Alan, has really taken the time to understand Lucian. He uses both English and Auslan, adapting activities to keep Lucian engaged, whether it's basic finger spelling or learning everyday signs around the house. Alan also helps Lucian prepare for group activities in the Deaf community and at school. He's taught him signs that Lucian then shares with his classmates. It's been great, because we've seen a real boost in Lucian's confidence and communication. Lucian's Auslan has also sparked the interest of his classmates. They're so enthusiastic - it's been amazing to see them embrace Auslan as a new way to connect with him.

Most Deaf children are born to hearing parents, and embracing the Deaf community has bridged our two worlds. Auslan isn't just a language, it's a culture. Now, I have an invaluable support network that empowers my son and our family as a whole.

Auslan isn't exclusive to those who use it as their primary language. It's a pathway to inclusion that allows for both oral and visual learning. It's given my son additional access to expressing himself and communicating so that he doesn't miss out.

WINNER'S STORY

L214 WINNER'S STORY:

"When I bought Deaf Lottery tickets, I had just seen an ad for a caravan trip around Australia. My sister had been buying tickets for years, so I thought, why not? I guess something was telling me to try my luck.

A few weeks later, my husband and I are still processing the $800,000 win! Working feels surreal now—everything has changed. We want to take care of the little things, support our family, and then buy a property. We love traveling around Australia and can't wait to start our next great adventure!"
