YOUR GENEROSITY GIVES DEAF KIDS A FAIR GO

The early years of any child's life are critical for language development. However, in a world designed for spoken communication, deaf, deafblind, and hard-of-hearing children often face significant barriers to language acquisition where spoken language is used.

Approximately 95% of deaf children are born to hearing parents who don't know Auslan. These families have to make definitive, often life-altering choices in the early years of their child's life and having support during this phase is crucial.

Our Family Mentor Program gives children multiple communication methods so they can reach important development milestones. By using both Auslan and introducing English, we give kids the resources needed to navigate their worlds.

Our mentors are Deaf adults with specialised training in early childhood development. They are matched with families and focus on first language acquisition, behaviours, social skills, and culture.

These critical skills form responsive parent-child relationships which are not just essential for brain development but for developing positive relationships as the deaf child navigates the world.

OUR APP MAKES IT EASIER THAN EVER TO ENTER

WHY IS AUSLAN ACCESS SO IMPORTANT?

For Deaf people, using Auslan links to their identity as Deaf individuals. As with any language, Auslan provides a sense of belonging and connection for Deaf people along with sharing a culture. Giving children access to Auslan means they can communicate and express themselves at a very early age. Auslan as a visual language presents an accessible way Deaf people can communicate without barriers.

At Deaf Connect, our family mentoring programs provides an opportunity for families to connect with a Deaf mentor. Genevieve Roberts, Deaf Connect Family Services Coordinator, highlighted the significance of early interactions with Deaf adults, to provide role models for deaf children and their families.

"As the greatest risk for deaf children is language deprivation, our Family Mentors encourages families with deaf kids to access Auslan in the critical early months and years of language development. Family Mentors empower parents with confidence and strong family bonding, encouraging deaf children to reach their full potential. They connect families with the village of support that is the Deaf community. We aim to inspire the future leaders of tomorrow, and remind them of the endless possibilities on the road ahead."
