

What if you couldn't access news in an emergency?

Auslan90 is the only daily news in Australian Sign Language. But without Federal funding, it will end on 30 June 2026.

Auslan90 provides Deaf people with critical news updates on national emergencies, elections, terrorist attacks, fuel shortages, and much more.

At a time when audiences are turning to trusted sources for clarity on complex global issues, Deaf Australians risk being excluded altogether.

30,000 Deaf people will be cut off from the news if Auslan90 is not saved.

Now is the time to raise awareness and show the Federal Government why Deaf Australians deserve equal access to media.

Help us save Auslan90 by contacting:

- Minister for Communications, Anika Wells
- Minister for Disability and NDIS, Mark Butler
- Minister for Multiculturalism, Steve Kamper
- Minister for Employment and Workplace Relations, Amanda Rishworth
